

NEWARK GIRL

Drinks Carbohic Acid And Now Her Condition is Critical.

IDA LEVINGSTON WAS INFATUATED WITH WILLIAM MILLBAUGH.

Girl of 18 With Unblemished Reputation--Note Written by Girl Just Before She Attempted to Take Her Life--Interview With Young Mr. Millbaugh.

Brooding over what she considered the neglect of her lover, and despairing because of the fear that she did not occupy the high position in his affections that she once did, Ida Livingston aged 18, made a desperate and what was considered at the time, and may yet prove to be, a successful attempt to end her life in a most excruciating and fearful manner, about 3:30 o'clock on Saturday night.

The young woman has been keeping company with William Millbaugh, a B. & O. caller about her own age, and as far as her family and friends were cognizant of the affair, the two were accepted lovers. It would seem however, that the young man's attentions had become less ardent, or at least the girl thought so, as subsequent events would tend to prove.

Miss Livingston, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Emma Frazier, at 127 East Main street, just east of the bridge, was up town Saturday afternoon and purchased a two ounce bottle of carbohic acid which was indicative of the fact that she contemplated ending her life even at that time. She returned home early in the evening and ate supper, and nothing unusual was noticed by the family, about her actions or conversation that would have led them to suspect that she was not in her wonted spirits and right mind.

After supper she sat in a chair reading, and after a time her grandmother, Mrs. John Beatty, who also lives with Mrs. Frazier, went to bed in an adjoining room, and for a time all was quiet in the house. This silence was broken only once, when Ida called to her grandmother, asking her where a lead pencil could be found. The elder woman gave the desired information, and soon after all was again still with no sound to indicate the desperate mental struggle that must have gone on in the young woman's mind as she contemplated the awful nature of her proposed act.

Undoubtedly she pictured to herself her desertion by her lover and the desolation in her heart as she contemplated a life without him, overmastered her. She could not live without him, it seemed to her that he could not be to her what she wished him, and only two alternatives appeared to present themselves. Life without him, unbearable, or death with a forgetfulness of what might have been.

Finally her mind was made up and quietly placing the vial to her lips she attempted to drain its contents of burning poison. She succeeded in swallowing about an ounce and soon fell forward writhing in agony, and nearly unconscious. A cough which seemed half strangled escaped her followed by heavy and peculiar breathing which attracted the attention of Mrs. Beatty. The latter called to the girl, but received no answer, and going in to the room discovered the unconscious form of the rash and unhappy girl. Mrs. Beatty summoned aid and soon Mrs. Frazier and some of the neighbors came in. Physicians were quickly called. Drs. Barnes, Downes, Smith and Dalton Miller were soon there. It was the consensus of opinion that death was certain before midnight, and doing everything in their power to make her as comfortable as possible all left, except one, Doctor Miller remaining until an early hour this morning.

As soon as the act became known, and almost at the same moment that

BEDFORD, IND., GIRL'S MURDER THUS FAR REMAINS A MYSTERY

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 25—"I know who committed this atrocious crime."

These were the words of a very high official here to your correspondent while they were discussing the great Bedford mystery today.

"I know who did it, and so do others," continued the speaker.

"Why do you not make an arrest?" was asked.

"If one could be convicted on a strong case of suspicion an arrest and a sensational one would be made at once. But this cannot be done. The evidence is being worked up slowly and carefully, and it is hoped to get enough to warrant an arrest that will result in a conviction. At this time those in the case, working it up, I mean, are treading on very dangerous ground. But I hope to see the whole matter cleared up and the guilty person brought to justice."

Further than this the speaker would not go. Asked if the suspect is a resident of Bedford, he said: "That I will not say, but hands can be laid on him at any time."

"Did he have an accomplice?" "I will not answer that."

"Is he an old or young man?"

"Well, he is not an old man. About the age of a person who might keep company, or desire to keep company with a young woman the age of Miss Schaefer."

This statement is really the first ray of hope that has cast sunshine on the gloom of mystery that surrounds the case.

An official deep in the case, said: "That girl was killed by a man who was prepared to kill her, if she did not do as he asked. She knew the man and he knew her. He had the piece of brick in his pocket. He made a demand. The girl refused and he struck her. The girl was not taken down into that carriage house for the purpose of assault. She was taken there to temporarily hide the body."

There is a wild story on the streets today. Joseph Heiter, Jr., son of a well-to-do business man, has been arrested at Bloomington and taken to Jeffersonville for safe-keeping. The story caused the wildest excitement.

Mayor Smith and Sheriff Smith both denied the arrest and said as far as the young man is concerned he will not be disturbed again. His room was searched Saturday night, but nothing was found. It is alleged that Heiter tried to kiss the girl. The story goes that she ordered him from her presence.

Sheriff Smith went to Paoli Sunday to investigate an ex-convict there. He returned this morning and said there was nothing new. Chief of Police Russell is in Louisville to confer with a woman whose name is not made public, who, it is said, has some important information.

Several weeks ago several young lady pupils upon opening their books found bad language written on the fly leaves. The handwriting was coarse and masculine and showed the writer to be illiterate. At this time a man was working in the neighborhood, whom Dr. Freeland and others knew as a degenerate. This man was ordered from the city a year ago and remained away some time. It has been learned that on several occasions he was seen to stare at the pupils and teachers. Miss Schaefer saw him and said she was afraid of him. His location on the fatal night is being looked up.

Another story told this morning came from close friend of Miss Schaefer. Miss Schaefer told this friend that before coming to Bedford she had quarreled with her sweetheart, whom she called Harry. She liked him, she said, and was worried about the quarrel. She showed a photograph of the man, who wore glasses. Miss Schaefer did not tell his name, and her girl friends called him "Harry Glasses." She said she felt like burying the hatchet, but had been advised by her mother not to do so.

OVER 150 MINERS ARE ENTOMBED.

Several Hundred at Work Trying to Liberate Imprisoned Men Near Cheswich, Pa.

Three on the Tipple Badly Burned by the Explosion and One of the Trio Died On Way to Hospital--Many Doubtless Killed by Explosion or by Suffocation--Superintendent Sends for Assistance and Every Effort to Rescue Miners is Being Made.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 25.--Between 125 and 150 men were entombed by an explosion in the shaft of the Harwick Coal company near Cheswich, this morning, shortly after 8 o'clock. None of the men had been rescued at 11 o'clock and it is believed that many of them were either killed outright by the explosion or have been suffocated by the gas. Several hundred men are at work trying to liberate the imprisoned miners. There are employed at the mine 200 men, 150 working inside and the remainder on the tippie. Three men on the tippie were badly burned by the explosion.

With a loud report and an upheaval like an earthquake the woodwork of the tippie was destroyed. The shaft was filled with debris, rocks and earth, completely shutting off all means of escape for those in the mine. Whether the explosion occurred at the far extremity of the mine and killed the men by the concussion, or whether it occurred nearer the shaft, and imprisoned the men, is not yet known.

There have been no means as yet of finding the exact nature of the disaster or the number who were killed.

If the mine entrance cannot be quickly cleared out so that the men can get fresh air all will have perished within a few hours.

Help was summoned from all sources available and as many men are engaged in the work of rescue as can be crowded in. Half a dozen men working near the mouth of the pit on the tippie were caught in the wreckage and at least three were seriously injured.

Supt. George Sheets immediately sent to Cheswich and Springdale for medical and other assistance. Gangs of workmen were sent in response and physicians hurried to the scene to take care of the injured.

The mine is about one mile from Cheswich and was opened about two years ago. The company is allied with the Allegheny Coal company, and is operated by Cleveland capitalists. The mine has always been a gaseous one, but there has never been any serious trouble previous to today.

There are two shafts 200 feet apart and about 220 feet deep. In the inside of the mine the headings had not been made more than half a mile. The mine has been but recently connected with the Pittsburg and Ressemer railroad, the new tracks being opened but last week.

A later report says the number of men entombed is larger than at first reported, it now being said that from 150 to 180 men are in the mine, including a fire boss and the pit boss. Just how the explosion occurred is not yet known. Intense excitement was aroused in Cheswich and Springdale.

The three injured tippie men were sent to Allegheny hospital on a train, one of the three was brought to the city and died when the train reached the West Penn station in Allegheny. His body was brought to the hospital along with the other injured.

A rescue party of 50 is now making a desperate effort to enter the shaft where the miners are entombed. At this time, 1:40 p. m., they have failed to reach the imprisoned men. It is now feared that all in the mine have been suffocated or burned. The flames and smoke baffle the rescuers who are unable to proceed. It now seems probable that all 180 imprisoned men must have perished.

Missing, William Sawyer, husband of dead woman; Michael Collier, boarding with the Sawyer family. A horribly burned body of a man, believed to be Collier, was taken out at 11 o'clock by the firemen.

An engagement has occurred near Hoffnung in which one German officer and seven men were killed, while the blacks lost 50 killed and many wounded. Dispatches add that five thousand blacks are now attacking Windhoek, the capital, where there are 250 Germans, mostly civilians. The blacks have massacred five German farmers and their families, twenty people in all, near Windhoek.

JAPANESE

Are Becoming Very Restless Over Russian Delay.

IS THE CZAR MERELY SEEKING WAY FOR GRACEFUL RETREAT?

Rioting Heralds War Which Diplomats Think is Bound to Come--Trouble Breaks Out in Capital of Korea--Again Reported Japs Are Landing an Army.

London, Jan. 25.--Your correspondent at Tokio wires this morning that the jingo element in the Japanese capital is becoming exceedingly restless at the delay in the arrival of the Russian reply to the latest note of the Mikado's government. He adds that official circles in Tokio say they have reason to hope that the reply will be favorable, but that, if it is shown that Russia is merely trifling with Japan with the view of gaining time, it will be necessary for the Japanese government to hasten the time limit ultimatum. This dispatch coincides with the belief in semi-official circles in London with exception that it is thought here that the Russian government by its delay is not trifling, but merely seeking out some way of graceful retreat from the stand she has taken.

RIOT AT SEOUL.

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 25.--An accident on the electric street railway here Sunday which resulted in the killing of a Korean, led to rioting on the part of the populace. The marine guard at the American Legation, however, without having recourse to their firearms, succeeded in preventing the trouble from assuming serious proportions.

MOB OF KOREANS.

Washington, Jan. 25.--The State Department received official information of an attack by a mob of native Koreans on an electric car in Korea, the line being owned by Americans, because of the fact that it had killed a Korean.

LANDING OF ARMY.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.--Reports of an alarming nature of the situation continue to pour out of the far East. These include the statements that the Japanese are landing an army in Korea, and that 2,000 Russian troops are crossing the Yalu River.

The reported dispatch of a Chinese army of soldiers trained by European officers beyond the great wall to preserve order in Manchuria cannot be confirmed here.

While the Russian Government understands the situation in Korea to be disturbed and possibly threatening, it has no information of a situation grave enough to warrant the landing of a large Japanese force there. Russia freely admits Japan's right to land in Korea a reasonable number of soldiers to preserve order, but the landing of an army at this stage of the negotiations could not be viewed with equanimity.

ARMY OF JAPS TO SEIZE KOREA

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 25.--Every available Japanese liner has been chartered for service and in addition to the 12,000 troops already landed in Korea others are being embarked.

On the pretext that Korea has failed to maintain order Japan is rushing a large army into the peninsula.

It is reliably reported here that it is Japan's intention to seize the whole of Korea.

That Russia will regard such a move as an act of war is certain.

The Russian army encamped on the Yalu river is reported moving toward Seoul. A clash between the Japs and Russians within 48 hours is considered almost certain.

Torpedoes have been extensively laid at commanding points, particularly in Massampo harbor.

Chefoo, China, Jan. 25.--The Manchurian railway has been undermined at several places above Fort Arthur, and dynamite was found wedged in the masonry of several bridges. Chinese and disguised Japanese are suspected.

AMUSEMENTS

Facts are stranger than fiction. All plays depend more or less on facts for their plots. Of course, at times authors are prone to carry the limits of dramatic license almost to the point where the realities of their plots are submerged in the figments of their own vivid imaginations.

"Human Hearts" is a notable exception, and fully illustrates how much interesting dramatic material may be gathered by an author, based on the actual happenings of life. The story of "Human Hearts" is almost true in every detail. The incidents that form the plot are well known, and still food for gossip in the community where they happened. The author of the play met the original Tom Logan several years ago, and heard the story from his own lips. Becoming deeply interested he journeyed to Logan's home, where he met most of the other characters who round out the cast of his play. When he asked permission to dramatize the story, it was readily granted on condition that he would change the names of the characters so that they would not be recognizable by anyone not familiar with the story. He readily agreed to this, and the result has been a play that has had a vivid interest for more lovers of all that is good and true in melodrama, than any other dramatic composition of the last decade.

"Human Hearts" will be shown at the Auditorium Wednesday night, January 27.

OSCAR L. FISMAN, AS THE BURGOMASTER.

THURSDAY NIGHT.

Pixley and Lunders greatest musical comedy success, "The Burgomaster," with a big company of sixty people, new production and new costumes, and the famous original cast of principals, which first brought the opera into prominence, will be the attraction at the Auditorium Thursday night.

Chicago has been the home of "The Burgomaster" but when the present company played there this summer, the papers unanimously declared that the production was the best in years, way that has ever been given of the great light opera. No other musical comedy ever produced in the country has ever had so many popular and catchy airs. Frank Pixley and Gustav Lunders had but one object in mind, "The Burgomaster." Pixley, who wrote the music, the libretto, and the lyrics, wrote music to set the first

FLIGHT OF MISSOURI STATESMEN.

How Two Representatives From the Bullion State Got Their Rented Dress Suits Mixed Up—Uncle Joe Cannon's Youthful Books—Archie Roosevelt's Snowball Bombardment—Joke at President's Expense.

Representative Lamar of Missouri is tall and thin. Representative Hamlin of the same state is short and fat. They are new members, and they wanted mightily to go to the president's reception the other night, says the New York World's Washington correspondent. They consulted each other and found it necessary to wear evening clothes. Both had frock coats, but neither had a suit of evening clothes.

There was not time to have new clothes made. They did not want to buy ready made suits, and they did not want many other men in their predicament have done—they rented suits. The clothes came to the Missouri statesmen about 6 o'clock in the evening. At 8 there was a wild cry over the telephone in the hotel where Lamar lives.

"Wanted at the phone," said a boy to Lamar.

"Tell him I can't come down," said Lamar. "I am dressing."

The boy went back, but returned and said:

"The man says you've got to come and talk with him. It's very important."

Lamar dragged some clothes over him and went to the telephone.

"This is Hamlin," said the man on the other end of the wire. "That blankety blank dress suit man sent me the pants that go with your suit, and I've ripped them up the leg trying to get them on. You've got my pants, Mrs. Hamlin will sew up the rip, but for heaven's sake send after your pants and send mine over here, or we never will get to that reception."

Two Missouri statesmen arrived at the White House shortly before 10 o'clock. They were attired in evening clothes, but they kept rather close to the wall.

Speaker Cannon had occasion to call upon Assistant Secretary Taylor of the treasury the other day on some official business, says the Washington Post. It seems as though the speaker had called a number of times previously regarding the same matter and felt that he was persecuting the official by his continual visits. As he entered the secretary's office the speaker said:

"Mr. Secretary, I suppose you are thinking something like what was said back in Damascus' time when that old warrior thought he was being persecuted—Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

"Mr. Speaker, I didn't know you were so well posted in Scripture as that," replied Secretary Taylor.

"Why, I couldn't help it," said Speaker Cannon, "because all the books I had at home when a boy was the Bible and 'Josephus.'"

Both officials enjoyed a hearty laugh and then proceeded to business.

There was a scene at the White House the other day that enlivened the peaceful precincts of the executive offices and made life worth living in the vicinity for awhile, says the New York Times.

It occurred when Archie Roosevelt returned from school about 1 o'clock. He came in by way of the president's offices and had a supply of snowballs in his hands and under his arms. As he entered the door he let drive at Arthur Simmons, the portly gentleman of color, who has been a large part of the White House force for the best part of a century. His aim was not good, and the missile landed about an inch above Arthur's head and on Secretary Loeb's door. Simmons caught the fragments as they fell over his ample person and laughed the rest of the day at the fun.

Captain Charles Loebler, the president's doorman, was standing across the room, and he made another fine target. He dodged in a way that suggested practice and ran into the cabinet room for safety. Before he was out of sight Steve O'Connell, the secret service man, felt a snowball whistle by his ear as he had went outside to pelt the big policeman who stands all day in front of the executive mansion. As the policeman and Archie are boon friends they soon had a good time, and the boy himself was made to feel the sting there is in a snowball well made and nicely thrown.

Secretary Shaw brought to a recent cabinet meeting at the White House a western newspaper which had a large headline, "Rough Rider Incarcerated." The article told of a fight in Arizona in which one of Colonel Roosevelt's former soldiers used a pistol with more or less deadly effect and was promptly put in the lockup by the deputy marshal. The president read the headlines. Before he made any comment Secretary Hay asked softly:

"Mr. President, doesn't that create a vacancy somewhere in the government service?"

Dancing Class at Yale.

Students of the Sheffield Scientific school, who are not compelled to take exercise, will be admitted. GRANGER'S ISLAND

(Copyright, 1893, by C. B. Lewis.)

I had been sent to a hospital at Singapore with fever, and upon convalescing and while looking for another berth as mate I ran across an American named Granger. He had been, according to his statements, a passenger on a vessel cast away in the China sea, and all hands had been lost save himself.

A part of the island was sterile and rocky, and amid the rocks he one day found a pirate's cave. There were, he contended in the most earnest way, thousands of pieces of silk and other costly goods, boxes of pearls, chests of jewelry and kegs of coin. He roughly estimated his find to be worth $2,000,000.

What the American wanted was to charter a ship to fetch away the treasure, and when he learned that I was a navigator he made me an offer that I closed with at once. The man seemed to have plenty of money, and in the course of a week he got hold of a schooner which was for charter, and ten days later she had been fitted out for the voyage.

We cleared for a port in Japan and got away with a fair wind, and during the two weeks it took us to work up to the locality of Granger's island all went well with us. He had located the place on the chart as being about fifty miles to the east of the island of Hainan.

Granger had been swept ashore at night. He had landed on one side of the island and been taken off on the other. He claimed to remember certain landmarks, however, and for ten days we threaded the channels of the islands, and he took a close look at every one. It was on the twelfth day of our search that we came to his island, and the finding of it gave us all a queer feeling. There were no such landmarks as he described, nor was the lay of the land at all according to his drawings. It was a totally different island in size and appearance, and yet he stoutly maintained that it was the one we had come in search of, and that there could be no mistake. We carried deep water to within half a mile of the beach, and then the schooner was anchored, and we pulled ashore in the yawl.

We landed on a sandy beach, and Granger headed into the forest without hesitation. After walking for half an hour he said that he recognized certain landmarks, and that the treasure was not far away. Presently he remarked that something had worked into his shoe, and, telling us to keep right on till we reached the rocks, he sat down and began unlacing his shoe. We left him behind in a moment, as the bushes were thick, and though we walked for half a mile we found no rocks. In going a distance of less than a mile we struck the other shore.

Granger had not yet joined us, and after waiting fifteen minutes I sent one of the men back to ascertain the cause of the delay. Failing to find the man, the sailor kept on to the beach, and then returned to us with the announcement that the yawl was missing. All my suspicions were now aroused, and we broke into a run as we made for the spot where the boat had been beached and left to care for herself. We got to the shore to see her alongside the anchored schooner. Two men had been left aboard, and as we stood there we saw Granger drive them into the yawl at the point of a pistol and command them to row for the shore. We yelled and shouted and demanded explanations, but he gave us no attention whatever.

Well, there we were, eight of us, ashore on a small island and an insane man in possession of the schooner. He had firearms, and we had only our knives. It would have been no trick at all to go off to him in the boat, but with his pistols he could have shot every one of us before a man could have reached the deck.

Granger's conduct showed that he was out of his mind. He could not run away with the craft, but what we feared was that he would scuttle her or set her on fire. We made our beds on the sands that night and slept soundly enough, and when morning came and Granger still refused to answer our hails we made up our minds that something must be done before the day was out.

After two or three hours of watching on our part and having seen no stir aboard one of the men climbed a palm tree and from a height of fifty feet got a fair view of the schooner's deck. Nothing was to be seen of Granger. He might be watching us from the galley or the cabin, but we must take our chances of that.

It was soon after noon that we all got into the boat to scull quietly down on the anchored craft, each man being armed with a club. Had he appeared we were prepared to put back at once, but foot by foot we approached the schooner without any alarm, and at length we were alongside. Five minutes after getting aboard we found him hanging by the neck in the cabin, and the state of the body proved that he had been dead for hours.

Who was Granger? He had paid a round price to charter the vessel, and yet he had come on a fool's errand. He could never have been wrecked as he stated, and there was no treasure house. Why did he tell such a yarn? We knew that he had been a sea captain, and the only explanation of his strange conduct was to believe that he had been dead for hours.

We sailed the schooner back to Singapore and made a report of the case and were subjected to a long legal examination, but, though thirty years have passed away, the identity of that man has not yet been established as his singular conduct satisfactorily accounted for.

A DOUBLE APPOINTMENT

(Original.)

"Mabel!"

"Edith!"

"Who ever would expect to meet you here in London?"

"I am as much surprised at meeting you."

"I got your wedding cards—that was six months ago—but supposed you took your wedding trip to the south."

"We did. I came here with mother six weeks ago. My husband couldn't leave at the time, and the doctor said mother must go away at once. But, come, let us sit down. Sightseeing is such tiresome work, and this gallery is interminable. Now we can talk more comfortably."

"When is your husband coming?"

"This morning, but he is obliged to go on immediately to Paris. He wrote me to meet him here close to the station. I am expecting him now."

"You've no idea how surprised I was at your being married after all our talks on matrimony. The last word you said to me the day we left college was 'never.' I had told you that you would take a husband within a year."

"And you were quite ready to take one as soon as you should meet your ideal?"

"Yes; I had more confidence in men than you. I trust men more than women."

"And I am still of my former opinion that men are not to be trusted at all. But I don't blame them. It isn't their nature to be tied down to one woman."

"How about your husband?"

"I don't expect too much of him."

"And are you satisfied with such want of confidence?"

"What can I do?"

"You could have adhered to your resolution never to marry."

"And been a sour old maid. No, I thank you. That was a college girl's talk. I didn't mean it."

"But what prospect of happiness have you with a man you can't trust?"

"I give him free rein. By and by he will tire of everybody but me and our children—when we get them. Then he'll want to spend his evenings toasting his shins before a fire at home. Companionship is better than a blighted romance."

"Oh, Mabel! Why did you not take a professorship of philosophy at college? It would have suited you better than marriage."

"But I am content with marriage. I don't expect what I have no right to expect and shall not be disappointed. But you, Edith—have you found your ideal?"

"Yes."

"Engaged?"

"Not yet. I only met him a week ago."

"Where?"

"On the steamer coming over."

"And you expect him?"

"To propose. I am sure of it. He is to meet me here this morning and has said that he shall have something very important to say to me."

"But I should think you would prefer to hear it in a less public place."

"Oh, no. There is a spice about this affair, nothing cut and dried. We met as travelers and will be engaged as sightseers."

"Look out, my dear, lest you are divorced homeward bound."

"I shall not be disappointed, nor will you when you see his frank, open face and his honest smile. But why can't I introduce him to you here?"

"You can unless he happens to come at the same time as my husband. In that case I shall be occupied."

"What time do you expect him?"

"At 11. His train arrives a few minutes before 11, and he leaves at 11:30."

"My appointment is for a quarter past 11. I fear we should clash."

"I would not for the world interfere with your expected happiness."

"Think, dear, what a prospect is before us! We are to spend a week in London and shall make up a party for the continent to go to the south of France and from there to Italy."

"Are you going to keep him by you with chain and collar?"

"You are incorrigible."

"Well, Mabel, I'm delighted at your prospect of happiness. I hope for your sake it will be fulfilled."

"The clock is striking 11. You will soon see your husband—that is, dear, if the train is on time. It may be a little late, you know."

"Or my beloved may spend some time putting a fair traveling companion into a cab, chatting with her and holding her hand before sending her away."

"Doubter!"

"You say 11:30 is the time for your meeting?"

"Eleven fifteen."

"I hope for your sake he'll be on time. You're all in a flutter."

"Nonsense. I'm perfectly cool."

"There he comes."

"The gentleman with the umbrella?"

"No; the one with the suit case."

"Heavens!"

"Oh, Theodore, I'm so glad you've come in time! I want to introduce you!"

"No occasion, my dear. I met your friend on the steamer and appointed this meeting with her and you that you should know each other. But how did you come together?"

"Theodore, you're a villain! Your companion du voyage and I are college classmates."

"Good. I'm off for Paris and will return next week. Then I will make up a party to visit the continent."

"Mabel, you see!"

"Edith, what a brain you have!"

Rheumatism

Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rheumatism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

S. S. S. is a harmless vegetable remedy, unequalled as a blood purifier and an invigorating, pleasant tonic. Book on Rheumatism will be mailed free.

CERTAINTY

In Weather Predictions to be Obtained by the X-Ray and Radium.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The discovery of the practical uses of the X-ray and radium in meteorology described in the recent book of Prof. Thomson of Cambridge, is regarded as of incalculable value by Chicago scientists and X-ray experts.

"The discoveries made by this group of scientists outlined in Prof. Thomson's work regarding projected electrons are full of opportunity for study and investigation," declared Dr. J. E. Gilman, the Boenigen ray expert.

"They will open a field of inquiry almost as pregnant in results as the discovery of oxygen."

Dr. Gilman said the discovery, no doubt, eventually would give to meteorology the rank of an exact science. We now know that one season is colder than another, he said, but we do not know exactly why this is so, because the distance of the earth from the sun would not cause the great difference in temperature. We know, in addition, that some days are hotter than others, but the exact cause for this is not definitely known.

This discovery puts us in a fair way of determining these reasons," said Dr. Gilman. "By first learning the cause of these phenomena it will not be a difficult matter to ascertain when they will occur. By finding the cause of the different electrical conditions we will be able to know with exactness the time that these electrical conditions will exist."

It's folly to suffer from that horrible plague of the night, aching piles. Dr. J. C. Hunter's cure, quick and permanent. At any drug store, 50 cents.

Charles White, an employee of the Crystal Ice company, left Saturday for a point about two miles north of Utopia where he spent Sunday with friends.

NICELY

IS THE LITTLE HILLEGARY CHILD PROGRESSING.

Father Returns From Chicago—Total Expense of the Trip $73.50—How It is Paid.

Dr. A. Lagouri, director of the Chicago Pasteur Institute, has written the Advocate under date of Saturday, January 25, saying that Maurice Hillegary's little eleven years old daughter, Elizabeth, who was bitten by a mad dog in East Newark last Tuesday morning, is progressing nicely.

The Pasteur Institute not only made a special price of $50 for treatment of the child but also secured special concessions from the boarding house where she is staying in Chicago. The charge for her board and lodging during the entire time of treatment will be only $10.

This makes the total expense $33.50, which will be borne equally by the Pratt-Kirk Company, A. H. Hoisey & Company, E. H. Everett, the James E. Thomas Company, the Elks Club, The Wehrle Company and the Advocate Printing Company.

Maurice Hillegary, father of the little girl, who accompanied her to Chicago last Tuesday night, returned home Saturday evening, and at once called at the office and gave an itemized account of his expenses and returned a sum of money which the Advocate had advanced him. Mr. Hillegary was exceedingly economical, as may be judged by the following statement:

H. & O., two round trips (half price) $12.50
Cab in Chicago to Institute..... 1.00
Board and lodging (4 days)..... 2.25
Pasteur treatment (special rate) 50.00
Child's board and lodging (special rate) 10.00
Mr. Hillegary's time, (4 days)..... 6.00
Total $82.50

Each of the seven mentioned above will pay one-seventh of this expense or $11.92 each.

It will be noted that the Advocate has figured in the expense the sum of $5 for four days for the child's father. This is done without Mr. Hillegary's knowledge or consent. Mr. Hillegary is a hard-working laboring man with a family of seven to support. He has been sick and unable to work part of the time and can ill afford to lose time. For that reason the Advocate felt that his time should rightly be figured in as part of the expense of the trip. Undoubtedly the subscribers of the fund will take the same view of the matter.

An Old Docket.

G. F. Richards, a justice of the peace in Franklin township, this county, has in his office an old civil docket that has been preserved for many years. The first case recorded in the old docket is that of C. Campbell and William Tippet, plaintiffs, against George Carlisle and Jonah Morgan, defendants. The case was brought by the plaintiffs to recover the sum of thirteen dollars and twelve cents. The action was begun on Friday, July 2, 1846, and entered on the docket by George Armstrong, a justice of the peace at that time, thus making the book nearly 58 years old. The old docket is in a good state of preservation. There are five other dockets in the Squire's office, but none so old as the one above mentioned. This is perhaps one of the oldest justice's dockets in Licking county.

Congressman Littlefield of Maine, says: "I do not see how the Republicans can hope to carry New York this fall." Mr. Littlefield, who is a well-informed politician as well as a devoted Republican, does not concede New York to the Democrats without a knowledge of conditions that justify his belief. He expresses a hope, however, that the Republicans will succeed in electing the President notwithstanding the loss of New York. In this hope Mr. Littlefield is doubtless whistling to keep up his courage while passing through the graveyard of his party. The fact is that New York's influence has always spread over other States, and it will aid the Democrats this year, as in the past, to carry quite enough of them to elect the President.

Senator Morgan's proposition to annex Panama is both logical and patriotic. If we finally complete the canal there which the French have had to abandon as an impractical undertaking, it will not be a great many years thereafter when we would find it necessary to take the whole territory over in order to conserve the commerce of the world, as well as protect our investment. If we shall fail to complete the work we would not want to desert the people for whom we stand sponsor before all the world, and who will never be able to get along alone. Besides, should we abandon them some other nation might undertake the job of building a Panama canal before we have finished the alternative task by the Nicaragua route, and this would give us more trouble. Hence, the seventy millions carried by the Morgan bill may prove to be a mere bagatelle before we have done with the Panamanians, unless we frankly go down there and buy their country. Then, too, the ten million dollars offered to Colombia for the loss of the Isthmus would close the transaction for all time by giving us a fee simple title to property which would still be a part of Colombia but for our aid to the secession movement.

ADDRESS

Sunday Afternoon at the Y. M. C. A.
Meeting on "Does the Moral Man Need Religion?"

Dr. Duvall's third address in the series which he is now giving at the men's meeting Sunday afternoon, was, if anything, more interesting than his preceding addresses.
In discussing the question, "Does the Moral Man Need Religion?" he presented many exceedingly helpful thoughts. The man who is merely moral is governing his life by trying to live out a mere abstract code or standard of ethics. He does what he conceives to be obligatory upon him as a member of society. But this is an incomplete and unsatisfactory mode of living, for it does not bring into exercise the higher elements of a man's nature, his capacity to love, to adore, to worship. Being a personality, man can not find complete satisfaction except he come into loving relationship with other personalities. God, the Father, being the highest, the ideal person, fulfills in his calling for man's friendship and love this supreme aspiration in human life, and this is what makes religion more comprehensive. It involves the highest possible morality, but something more—a loving relationship with the greatest personality of the universe—even God the Father.
The musical program which preceded the address was greatly enjoyed. Miss Letitia Felix gave the opening number on the piano. Mr. Walter Bentley Ball and Miss Freda Pfeffer each sang a solo, and Miss Vida Schaefer and Mr. Ebersole, a duet.
The Bible study groups continue to interest a large group of young men. Judge Seward, Rev. H. N. Miller and Prof. M. E. Wise each had large classes yesterday.

ROOSEVELT WEAKENING

Shows His Fear of Hanna in the Ohio Conflict

Hesitates to Comply With Foraker's Demands and Manifests Dread of Increasing Bitterness in the Buckeye State—President's Friends Realize He is Losing Ground Daily.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Senator Foraker visited the White House Saturday and made a formal demand upon the President for fulfillment of the terms of their partnership agreement. He asked the President, first, to place all of the available patronage of the state in his hands; second, to declare formally his interest in Foraker's efforts to elect a Roosevelt delegation to the national convention, and, third, to take steps to compel Senator Hanna to declare his attitude toward the President.

President Roosevelt declined to entertain the third request and intimated that he was not prepared to give an affirmative answer to the second request. The first, however, he said he would take under advisement and intimated that he might grant it. This was satisfactory to Senator Foraker. All he wants is encouragement, however slight, to inaugurate a fight for his own political salvation, and if the President will award him the available patronage he will return to Ohio and begin a campaign that will attract the attention of the country.

The President's friends do not believe he will give Foraker the patronage he asks for. The President is afraid that if he were to do so he would only increase the bitterness and resentment of Hanna's followers in Ohio and elsewhere and to that extent at least minimize his own chance of being nominated.
Foraker apparently is willing to wait for the President to reach a decision, and in the meantime will preserve an unruffled exterior. He refuses to complain about the President's practical abandonment of him while he was in Ohio organizing a fight against the Hanna machine. He is willing to give the President another opportunity to make good, and he does not will be at liberty to take such steps for self-preservation as the exigencies of the future may dictate.

Whatever the President's decision may be Senator Hanna's lieutenants both in Washington and Ohio, are working to a single end. Their ultimatum is, "No compromise; that Foraker will not attend the national convention as a delegate and that the delegates must be friends of Senator Hanna." Senator Foraker probably is aware of the attitude of Hanna's friends and understand the urgent need of a prompt decision on the part of the President, but he knows of no way to accelerate the operations of the President's mind. The President is a candidate, and, like all candidates, is timid and halting.

The President is losing ground all the time. That is apparent to even his most loyal friends. Few Republicans of rational influence and just as few possessing large influence in their own states are coming voluntarily to confer with him. The White House list of congressional visitors is dwindling to smaller proportions day by day. The executive offices present none of the aspects of a headquarters of the only avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for President. The President is constantly exercising his prerogative to send for friends, but there is a marked falling off in the number of Republican politicians who voluntarily visit the White House.

HON. J. F. STYRON

Cured of Deep-Seated Cough and Dangerous Condition by Vinol.

Hundreds of people right here in Newark are coughing, sneezing, shivering, and trying all sorts of cough mixtures, old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions which only upset the stomach and fail to cure the condition.

Way waste time and remain miserable when we guarantee our delicious cod liver oil preparation, Vinol. It contains every one of the medicinal elements of cod liver oil without a drop of oil to nauseate and upset the stomach and retard its work, and no sickening drugs. Vinol will cure that hard cold, hacking cough, throat or bronchial trouble, and if it fails we pay back your money.

The Hon. J. F. Styron of Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I suffered with a deep-seated cough which nothing seemed to help; my head was all stopped up, and my throat sore and irritated. My lungs ached all the time, and I had tried so many remedies without benefit that my stomach was all out of order and food nauseated me. Vinol was recommended: I dreaded taking it for I dislike cod liver oil, but to my surprise, the taste of the cod liver oil was disguised entirely; it is delicious, and soon it toned up my stomach, restored my appetite, cured my cough and made me feel like a new man. Vinol is a wonderful cod liver oil preparation, and it cures bronchial, lung and stomach troubles quicker than any remedy I ever heard of. I have recommended it to a great many people, and always with the best of results."

DEFIANCE

Hurled at the Government by Brigham
Young in His Diary, Just Made Public.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 25.—A portion of Brigham Young's diary has just come to light for the first time. It is written in the Mormon leader's well-known hand-writing and its authenticity is unquestioned. The document, which was written during the turbulent days of 1857, contains many bitter denunciations of the United States Government and breathes a spirit of vengeance. Here is an extract:

"July 12—I wish to avoid hostilities with the United States, but before I will see the Mormons suffer as they have done I will draw my sword in the name of Israel's God and permit the bones of myself and family to bleach
with those of my brethren and sisters
on the mountains and say to my brethren, 'let our sword fall upon our enemies!'"

"July 24—I said if General Harney came here I should know the intention of the Government, and it was carried unanimously that if Harney crossed the South Pass the buzzards should pick his bones. The feeling of mobocracy is rife in the states. The constant cry is 'Kill the Mormons.'
Let them try it."

August 20—The United States really seems determined to make an eruption with us. Well, they must abide the consequences. When I entered Salt Lake City, July 24, 1847, I remarked that if the devil will let us alone 19 years we will bid them defiance. I feel the same way now. I defy all the powers of darkness."

REV. JAS. B. SMITH

Son of Newark Paper Hanger and Painter Leaves
Highland County Church--Members of Congregation File Complaint--Father in Newark Says
Factional Trouble is at Bottom of it.

Hillsboro, O., Jan. 25.—The congregations of the Christian churches at Lynchburg and Fairview, this county,
have been greatly wrought up the past week over the actions of their pastor,
Rev. James Burton Smith.

Rev. Mr. Smith came to Lynchburg and Fairview and was taken up by the congregations of both churches. He told a tale of suffering and woe and persecution that enlisted the sympathies of these good people.

He claimed to have established a mission in Northern Alabama, where he baptized a negro. This brought down upon him the wrath of his white neighbors. After a fight of several months he was compelled to abandon the field he said.

Both congregations took him up without investigating his story and employed him for a year, beginning August 1, 1903. In a short time stories began to be whispered about concerning what they now call his "unsavory"
past. The Fairview church induced him to resign several weeks ago.

A factional fight was inaugurated in the Lynchburg congregation and a number attempted to uphold their preacher's hands. Several days ago
the fight becoming warmer than he could stand, he handed his resignation to the supervising committee of the church and they recommended its acceptance, the resignation to be effective January 23.

Before the time was up Rev. Mr.
Smith quietly left the community, leaving many outstanding debts.

The church took action withdrawing from their preacher and ordered the committee to report the same to the Christian papers.

The statement of the committee is
as follows:

"We believe him to be in general
"1. An imposter.

"2. A liar.

"3. A hypocrite, if not quite, a toper.

"4. A slanderer.

"5. A busybody.

"6. A backbiter.

"7. A grain of buckwheat, inasmuch as whatsoever way he turned, you found a foe.

"8. Unworthy the confidence and cognizance of Christian people generally.

"We are prepared to substantiate
any and all the above charges.

They conclude their arraignment by hoping their erring brother may cease to follow in his way of folly, that he may become a good citizen some time,
that he may never attempt again to foist himself as a preacher upon the public and never again abuse the confidence of a people that would have loved him and done him only good deeds.

The committee which presented the report is composed of W. L. Stauffer, cashier of the Lynchburg bank; P. L.
Harrison, and L. L. Faris, principal of the school here.

Rev. Mr. Smith is a native of Newark, O., and for several years was in Columbus, where he worked as a paper-hanger and frescoer. He was a fluent talker and a man of good appearance.

His present whereabouts is unknown, although he claimed to be leaving for Florida.

His father is a resident of Newark,
Ohio.

Father Interviewed

Rev. James B. Smith is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A.
Smith of 395 Tenth street. The senior Smith is a well known painter and paper hanger, and with him the son learned his trade at which he worked more or less steadily until about six years ago, when he entered evangelistic work under the sanction of the Church of Christ.

He went into the slums at Cincinnati and did work there for two years
under the direction of the Richmond
street church and then went to Buffalo, W. Va., where he started a congregation unaided, and married there.
He then went to Coal Run, Washington county, W. Va., and after a year
there removed to Athens, Alabama.

His work in Athens continued until last summer, when he came home and worked with his father for a while at his trade. He was recommended by Fred Kowe, editor of the Christian Leader, to the congregation at Lynchburg, Highland county, and he went there from Newark.

Mr. Charles Smith says his son always carried the best of recommendations, including many letters as to his character from business men of this city, and from members of every congregation with which he had been associated. Rev. Mr. Smith is now in Thomsville, Ga., and his father received a letter from him at that place
last Friday.

According to the father the trouble
in the Lynchburg church is a factional difficulty, which in no way reflects
upon his son.

WEDDING

Of Mr. M. B. Marley and Miss Aura H.
Allen on January 17th, but the Event Was Kept Secret.

The following cards which have been received by relatives of the contracting parties will be a great surprise to the friends of the bride:

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allen Announce the marriage of their daughter,
Aura Helen
to
M. B. Marley,
January Seventeenth, 1904, at high noon.

At Home after March 1st, 1904,
No. 747 Huggett avenue,
Superior, Wisconsin.

A pretty romance is connected with the marriage in which the United States mails played an important part.

The groom who was a resident of Salt Lake City, is well acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Southard, former resident of Newark, who have been living in this city for several years, while the bride was formerly a school girl chum of Mrs. Southard. In this manner a correspondence was started, the young people not meeting
each other until Thursday, Jan. 14,
when the groom came from his home
in the west to claim his bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Marley were married
Sunday noon, January 17, the Rev. J.
C. Schindel, pastor of the St. Paul Lutheran church officiating, the ceremony being performed at the parsonage.

Miss Romaine Moriarity and Mr. Ed
Bullock attended the wedding as bridesmaid and best man. After the ceremony Mrs. George Moriarity tendered the bride and groom a wedding
supper at their home, 128 Valandigham street.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen and is a young woman who is held in the highest esteem
by a large circle of friends. She holds an important position as head bookkeeper at the Newark Steam Laundry,
and the reason the marriage was kept
secret was to allow the proprietor, Mr.
W. A. Lovett to cast around for a capable person to take her place.

Mrs. Marley will remain at the laundry for a couple of weeks yet and will then join her husband in Superior,
where he is a locomotive engineer running out of that place.

The bride's many friends in this city
join in wishing her much happiness,
which she deserves.

YARDMASTER

Charged With Being at the Head of a Gang of Railroad Thieves in Lima, Ohio.

Lima, O., Jan. 25.—Yardmaster B. F.
Jeffries was Sunday arrested on the charge of being at the head of the systematic thefts made from the Detroit
Southern freight yards. With Jeffries four others are now held for the grand jury, which has delayed its findings
two days on the advice from the general offices of the railway company.

The police believe that with these arrests an organized gang of railway thieves has been broken up. Thousands of dollars worth of chatties have been taken from the C. H. and D., L. E. and W., and Detroit Southern freight yards
and houses within the past six months.
All these roads have transfer yards
here and goods in transit lie many hours between trains. Special detectives have been working on the cases and resident officers have been detailed for this point. It is hinted that higher officials than Jeffries may be apprehended. Railway clerical circles are greatly stunned. The arrests
include George Fultz, George Butler, John Nugent and Henry Miller.

are usually met at St. Clair street.
Another is a brown spaniel that

tacked Supt. J. M. Townsend Monday
noon, while he was riding his wheel
homeward, and it bit an ugly bite
in the right calf, which had to be cauterized.

PNEUMONIA HERE

Leads All Other Diseases in Death Reports—The Cause and Why.

Pneumonia leads all other diseases in the weekly death reports filed at city hall within the past few weeks.

Pneumonia is a germ disease, due to a specific germ. It is not of particular interest to know that the germ is called the Diplococcus; it is important to know, however, that the pneumonia germ cannot grow in a system that is properly fortified.

Pneumonia frequently follows long exposure—and when the doctors use the word exposure, they mean any condition that tends to exhaust vitality and waste tissue; it may be a cold, a trenching in a pouring rain, or a weakened state of the organs of the body—excess in any form.

The doctor knows that his first duty is to have the patient take nourishment that will increase the bodily warmth. The elements that Nature draws upon day by day to keep up this bodily warmth are the exact properties contained in the formula of Father John's Medicine.

That is why no other medicine ever prescribed is more effective in curing colds, grip and pneumonia.

Pneumonia often follows colds and grip because the body has been weakened by the poisonous and nerve-deadening drugs contained in 99 per cent of the patent medicines and so-called "cough balsams," and "syrups."

What you mistake for temporary relief from these dangerous preparations is deadening of the nerves at the expense of weakening the body; the disease and impurities remain.

If, after a cold or attack of the grip you feel tired and exhausted, it is because the process by which the impurities are driven out has been interrupted and held in check by these drugs.

It is in the getting well stage that there is great danger, and it is important that the body should be nourished and strengthened, gradually and naturally to escape this danger. Father John's Medicine, which is pure nourishment and free from poisonous drugs in any form, will do this. It always prevents pneumonia, if taken before that stage when you have to call in a doctor. We refund the money for any cough or cold it does not cure.

It is prescribed by hospitals and physicians, and has been for years. For sale in Newark by J. W. Collins & Son.

SUFFERING IS INTENSE.

Frightful Conditions Exist Throughout the Ohio Valley—Thousands Living in Second Stories or on Hillsides—Flood Followed by Cold Wave.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 25.—Frightful conditions exist throughout the Ohio valley. The suffering in this city is terrible. To add to the distress natural upon the coming of the flood is the cold wave, which froze water in the houses and streets and covered the inundated districts with a glaze of ice that prevents communication. Merchants cannot deliver food in the lowlands. Hundreds of people are unable to get out of their homes. In Benwood there is not a single block that is high and dry, and 5,000 people are living in second stories or on hillsides while the suffering is intense.

Toledo, O., Jan. 25.—The ice gorging in the Maumee Bay and the water in the river is higher today than at any time since 1893. Water in the cellars along Summit street has put out the fires and business in the big blocks and retail stores is temporarily suspended on account of the flood. Water has backed up into the cellars a quarter of a mile back from the river.

MRS. BECHTEL

Accused by Jury of Charge of Being Accessory to Her Daughter's Murder.

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 25.—By its verdict of not guilty the jury in the Bechtel case not only cleared Mrs. Catherine Bechtel of the charge of aiding her son Tom to conceal the evidences of murder, but in effect also cleared the dead man, Thomas Bechtel, of the awful crime with which he was charged, for the two cases were so interwoven that the acquittal of one must result in the acquittal of the other. This point was strongly brought out by Judge Trevelyan in his charge to the jury when he declared that the case was one presenting unusual complications, and that if the jury did not believe in Thomas Bechtel's guilt they could not bring in a verdict of guilty against his mother.

The verdict leaves the murder of Mabel Bechtel still a mystery, a mystery, however, which Mrs. Bechtel's lawyer, declares he will devote all of his energies to solving, and that he believes that he is on the right track was shown by his denunciation of Alois Eckstein, the dead girl's discredited lover, in open court. The entire audience was breathless as Lawyer Schaadt, in scathing terms, declared that Alois Eckstein, and he alone, had a sufficient motive for the murder, and that none but Eckstein could have brought the body to the house and placed the dead girl's clothing inside. A large part of the jury's deliberations were devoted to the discussion of Eckstein's evidence, which the jurors finally decided to discredit.

The Bechtels had a happy family reunion, saddened only by the absence of the two whose death brought the trouble upon them.

War or Peace Tomorrow.

Port Arthur, Jan. 25.—High officials here say they believe war or peace will be decided upon today or tomorrow.

After a conference of the heads of all the departments of the Manchurian administration orders were issued that a list of every available army and navy reserve man in Manchuria be drawn up, as well as a list of those indispensable for the civil administration which it is impossible to send to the front. It is asserted that the reserves total 84,000 men.

Eat Horse Meat.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Horse meat and sausage are becoming the staple articles of diet among German workmen according to a report received from Consul Harris at Amannheim.

The reduction in wages caused by business depression has made it impossible, Mr. Harris says, for the ordinary workman to purchase any better grades of meat.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The weather bureau issued the following bulletin this morning: The Ohio river at Parkersburg has reached the stage of 41.4 feet or 5.4 feet above the danger line. It can rise but little more and will probably begin to fall by tonight. The rise continues at Cincinnati, but no extreme stages are anticipated.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 25.—During the night the Ohio river rose more than was expected and many down town merchants and manufacturers had to spend all night moving their stock. At 8 a. m. the river was 41.6 and rising two-tenths an hour. Water covers all First and Second streets, Lebeck and Elizabeth avenues, Southside, Riverside and Beechwood.

Cincinnati, Jan. 25.—Three men went down to death today when the Pittsburgh Coal Company's powerful harbor tow boat Adele sank at Browne coal harbor. The men who lost their lives are Captain Frank Moore, Caspar Adrien, and John Hancock, fireman. The ice which bore down upon the boat was from the gorge at Sisterville.

CHILD KILLED

Carried by a Dog Into House at Indianapolis—Was the Child Killed by the Dog?

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 25.—The head of a child fully one year old carried into the home of August Barth on Clay ton avenue, by a dog, Saturday night, has revealed either a case of child murder or the vicious actions of dogs, which tore the child apart. The latter theory is believed by the coroner and police to be the correct one. The Barth home is located in the common southeast of the city and no one lives within a radius of a mile of the Barths. They are Germans and can scarcely speak English, and until finally advised this morning to notify the police and coroner they had not known what to do. The coroner's theory is that the child was purposely abandoned in this lonely common and was frozen or heaved into unconsciousness and was then torn by dogs.

the girl's body was found, the motive was also discovered.

Miss Livingston recently had some photographs taken, and one of these she put in an envelope on the outside of which she had written with a lead pencil the following words which gave the motive for her attempt to end her life:

Emma—I kill myself for Will because I love him and he does not love me. Please give him my picture, as I promised him. Your sister, IDA.

Mrs. Frazier, to whom this despairing note was addressed, said that by the last sentence she thought was meant, "Forgive me."

This was found on a small table at which she was sitting when Mrs. Beatty left her earlier in the evening. This was the first intimation that the family had that all was not serene between Ida and her lover, as the latter had promised to call upon her that evening.

A messenger was sent for young Millbaugh, who was found at the Auditorium enjoying the performance of "A Gentleman from France." He was told of the situation at the home of his sweetheart and went there as soon as possible. The girl was lying on a couch and consciousness had long since left her. By no look nor sign did she give any recognition of the fact that he, who had been so much to her that she could not live without him, was at her side. Young Millbaugh entered the room, which seemed in all its surroundings to be the chamber of death. On the couch lay the young woman who loved him better than her life, gasping in what all thought to be her death throes, every breath being taken with a strangled, choking sound that was terrible to hear.

Immediately surrounding her were the physicians quickly, quickly and with practiced dexterity administering those remedies which under other circumstances, might give relief, but by their looks it was apparent that the men of medicine had no hopes of the patient's recovering.

A little further back in a semi-circle stood the grief stricken family. Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. Frazier, the girl's stepfather, and her own mother, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Hissong, of Woodside, who had been summoned, and several sympathetic neighbors and friends. As Millbaugh entered the room, the circle parted silently, as if by common thought, and without a word of greeting from him or to him the young man went straight to the couch and sitting upon the edge took his sweetheart's hand in his and gazed intently into her half closed and glassy eyes as if for some sign of recognition. But it was not to be, and the hand lay cold and unresponsive to his touch.

Here he remained while the minutes lengthened into hours, and not a word escaped him until in answer to a question by an Advocate reporter, which he answered fully and with civility.

Doctor Dalton Miller worked heroically all Saturday night and until early Sunday morning to save the life of the young woman, his efforts appearing more than futile. Flashes of fever were quickly succeeded by chills which left the face and hands like stone.

Assisted by Mr. Lee Beatty, the girl's uncle, the young physician used every means known to his science and dictated by the specific symptoms of this case. At times the breathing was scarcely discernible and only a flutter of the heart indicated that the spirit had not taken its flight. At these times artificial respiration was resorted to, the two strong men working until the perspiration stood out in beads upon their foreheads. Towards dawn on Sunday their efforts were rewarded by signs of returning consciousness and these favorable symptoms continued throughout Sunday, until Monday morning when the patient was perfectly conscious of all her surroundings and had a chance for life, except for symptoms of pneumonia, which developed and now threaten to complete the work of the poison.

During Sunday Rev. G. W. Van Fossen, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, called at the home and was admitted to the bedside of the suffering girl. She recognized the clergyman and said to him that if God could forgive her for her rash act, and restore her to life she would never again attempt the sin of self murder. She could not talk much and after a time the rector left.

Miss Livingston has taken some nourishment and there are other favorable symptoms in her present condition.

Mrs. Beatty said that for some time before her grand daughter attempted suicide, she had devoted most of her spare time to a study of the Bible. It is not known what particular passages she read at these times, as nothing was thought of the matter and no effort was made by the family to find out, as she had frequently studied the Bible in preparation for Sabbath school.

Ida Livingston is the youngest daughter of George Livingston and was born in Millwood in Knox county. When five months old her father was instantly killed by a kick from a horse which broke his neck. Four years after this her mother was married to Eli Hissong, who now resides in Woodside. She has three sisters all of Newark: Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Frank Caine and Miss Nettie.

The girl has been practically brought up by her grandparents, and has always borne an unblemished reputation. It can be positively stated that there is no scandal connected with her attempt to end her life.

Mrs. Nettie Durban, an aunt, who resides in Mt. Vernon, came to Newark in answer to a telephone message telling of her niece's condition. Almost at the same moment Mrs. Durban received word that Mrs. A. Wormer, who lives near Mt. Vernon had dropped dead. Mrs. Wormer was the mother of Bert Wormer, the husband of Mrs. Durban's daughter.

Monday morning an Advocate reporter says Mr. William Millbaugh, the Baltimore & Ohio caller, with whom Miss Livingston is said to have been infatuated. Mr. Millbaugh, who is a young man highly respected by all who are acquainted with him, was very anxious that he be set straight in the matter. He said that he had known Miss Livingston for some time, and had called on her a number of times, but that he never had any other feeling towards her than that of a friend. He says that he has been keeping steady company with a young lady who resides in West Newark, and never suspected that Miss Livingston had formed an attachment for him.

The Advocate was told by Mrs. Beatty that Millbaugh had told the family that he expected to inherit a fortune when he was 21 years of age, which he would forfeit if he sooner married. The young man denied this and says he has no such roseate financial prospects.

HAVE LITTLE HOPE.

At 2:15 o'clock Monday afternoon Miss Livingston was still alive, but pneumonia had developed and the family have little hopes for her recovery.

Co-ed a High Kicker.

How high can a co-ed kick? This question is vexing the athletic department of the Chicago university. The men's high kick for ten years is registered. The women's record is withheld, but the holder of the record has been discovered, says a Chicago dispatch. She is Miss Lucinda Buck. President Harper has omitted her record in his report. Miss Buck is small, but her friends say she tossed her coe six feet eight inches.

Song in Winter.

When snow lies deep
O'er field and hill,
When shadows creep
O'er heart and will,
Oh, then rejoice,
Lift up your eyes,
And give glad voice,
For winter lies.

And spring hastens on,
Dost hear her sighs,
Though skies are wan,
'Neath snow and ice?

List how the stream
Sings as it flows,
A summer dream
Hidden deep in snows.

As darkest hour
Comes just at dawn,
As bloom fair flowers
In lands forlorn,

So winter's chill
And dreary skies
Mean never still Spring's promise.

—New York Herald.

A Wry Greeting.

Dr. Madison C. Peters tells of a Indianer made break by a young man in orders just about graduating into the ministry. This youthful divine was called upon to address the inmates of one of the largest penitentiaries in the country on an occasion when the prisoners were assembled in the chapel for prayers.

When he looked down from his pulpit at the vicious, depraved and desperate looking characters in the congregation the young person experienced quite a turn. Surely he would find it difficult to say anything that would impress such an audience. He entirely forgot in that instant all the fine sentiments he had intended to give expression to. He concluded his remarks in vain to remember a single appropriate remark for the occasion. He cleared his throat once, then again and again. Finally he spoke, but instead of the fine address he had hoped to make the best he could stammer forth was: "Ah, my friends, I am indeed happy to see so many of you here this morning."—Lippincott's Magazine.

GRANVILLE

RARE MUSICAL TREAT WILL BE GIVEN FEBRUARY 3

Thursday will be Observed as Day of Prayer for Colleges—Granville Personal Items.

Granville, O., Jan. 25.—Music lovers
of Granville and vicinity will hail with pleasure the announcement of a rare treat in store for the evening of Wednesday, February 3. This will be the singing of Handel's Messiah, by the Baptist church choir, assisted by out of town soloists. This oratorio is one of the world's masterpieces, composed by one of the world's famous musicians in only nineteen days, a fact which can be accounted for only on the score of inspiration. It is a great sacred work, which has been sung for over one hundred years with ever increasing popularity and appreciation, and though the complete score
would be too heavy for present day
audiences the most interesting portions will be given by the choir, and a correct estimate of the character of the oratorio can be gathered from the performance. Those not already familiar with the score should not fail
to avail themselves of this privilege,
and those who have been so fortunate
as to have heard it under the most favorable conditions, might enjoy a repetition of the choruses and beautiful solos, even without the aid of a symphony orchestra. The soloists will be: Mrs. Edith Sage Macdonald, Co-soprano; Miss Evelyn Thomas, Contralto; Mr. Ellis Lester, bass; Miss Jennie Blinn, director;
Miss Elizabeth Benedict, accompanist.
Keep the date in mind. Wednesday evening, February 3, in the Baptist church, Granville, at 8 o'clock. The admission will only be 25 cents, and a crowded house should witness this great musical treat.

Thursday of this week, the day of Prayer for Colleges, will be fittingly observed by Denison. The morning service will be conducted in the College Chapel at 9 o'clock by the Rev.
Elmer Harris of Toronto, whose work
among the students last year was so successful. During the week services will be held at different hours every morning, at which a large attendance
is expected.

Miss Carrie Williams, residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Williams, about two miles northeast of this place, was pleasantly surprised

by a party of her young friends on Saturday evening in honor of the eighteenth anniversary of her birth.
The evening was delightfully spent with games and music, Miss Williams
proving a charming young hostess.

Mr. Adgate, a senior in the Academy, spent Sunday at his home in Niles, O.

Saturday evening Calliope deligh-tfully entertained her friends at the initiation and reception given to the new members. An excellent program was provided and a very enjoyable
social evening was spent by all. During the evening light refreshments were served.

Miss Spencer, State Secretary of the Y. W. C. A. is spending a few days at Shepherdson College. A meeting Saturday afternoon was conducted by her,
which was helpful to all.

Mrs. W. W. Geach, who has been visiting relatives in Burlington, Iowa,
expects to remain there until spring.
Graham Beckel entertained a number of his friends very pleasantly at his home on the hill on Tuesday evening of last week.

Mrs. Martha Lloyd and little daughter, Mary, of Columbus, who have been visiting relatives here for the past week, returned home on Monday.

Charles Matthews of Newark, spent Sunday in Granville, the guest of friends.

Mr. J. S. Jones of Chicago, is spending a few days at his home here.

Leon Taylor, Denison '07, was initiated into the Beta Theta Pi fraternity Saturday evening.

George Perry of Washington, D. C., has been enrolled as a Freshman at Denison

Miss Helen Case spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Stella Moore at her home "Bryn Mawr", south of town.

"The nicest and pleasantest medicine I have used for indigestion and constipation is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets," says Melard F. Craig of Middlegrove, N. Y. "They work like a charm and do not grip or have any unpleasant effect." For sale
by all druggists.

INJUNCTION

Against Three Cent Fare Secured from Judge Charles M. Wing at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 28.—Judge Wing of the United States circuit court who is a former Newark man, upon application of the Cleveland Electric railway company, has issued a temporary injunction, restraining city officials from enforcing ordinance recently adopted by the city council, providing for three cent street car fares within a certain zone. The ordinance fixed Sunday as the time for the inauguration of the new fare schedule. The injunction is to hold until February 15.

AKRON WITHOUT GAS.

Akron, O., Jan. 25.—A leak in the main of the East Ohio Gas Co. at Dennison, shut off the gas from this city
all day Saturday. Practically all the factories are shut down and many people were compelled to go without light or heat, causing intense suffering in many instances. The break was fixed in the afternoon and the gas turned on just as the cold weather was making itself felt.

FIVE YEARS

Of Wedded Life Before Any One Knew
of This Tallmadge Couple's Relations.

Akron, O., Jan. 25.—In common pleas court Cora B. Thomas is suing her husband, Wm. T. Thomas, who is also her cousin, for alimony. The parties live in Tallmadge, and were secretly married in Dunkirk, N. Y., in 1899.
They never publicly acknowledged their relationship to each other and only when the husband, as the evidence discloses, began to consort with other women and even asked one of them to marry him, did the wife begin the action for divorce. She is a school teacher in Cuyahoga.

and a 32nd degree Mason.

years of a life well spent Mrs. Anna
Blandy passed away on Sunday. Mrs.
Blandy was the widow of the late

she came to this city from Columbus.
She had no immediate relatives in this city, with the exception of Mr.
Benjamin Blandy of Blandy's hill, who is a nephew.

CHILD LIKES PAREGORIC.

Delaware, O., Jan. 25.—Saturday
morning the two year old child of Mr.
and Mrs. S. Whitmer got hold of a paregoric bottle while his mother was in another room. The child swallowed half the contents of the bottle but the overdose probably saved his life and it will recover.

COOK-PETERS.

George M. Cook, proprietor of the Hotel Green, in Pataskala, was married at the home of his sister, Mrs.
Mr. Green, on West Main street, Sunday, January 24, to Miss Carrie Peters, daughter of a well known farmer who lives near Jersey.

JUDGE COYNER

Took Summary Measures to Bring a
Mt. Vernon Saloonist Before Him
for Sentence.

Mt. Vernon, O., Jan. 25.—Max Hyman, a former Mt. Vernon saloonist, was sentenced Saturday to serve 10 days in jail and to pay a fine of $250 and the costs for contempt of court. The sentence was imposed by Judge George Coyner.

At a term of court last year Hyman
was found guilty of violating the Reat
law and his place was ordered apated.
Later officers found liquor in the place and Hyman was then brought up on the contempt charge. When the court called the case it was reported that Hyman was ill.

The court sent a physician to his bedside and the latter stated that Hyman was shamming. Thereupon the court ordered Hyman brought into court. Sheriff Shellenbarger executed
the order.

OPEN KNIFE

Found in Coat Pocket of Murdered
Man May Prove the Salvation of O'Brien.

Springfield, O., Jan. 25.—The missing
link in the chain of evidence being woven by the defense that Michael O.
Brien killed "Spot" Leonard in self-defense, was found Saturday by the attorneys in examining Leonard's coat,
when they found an open knife.

O'Brien testified that Leonard came
at him with something in his hand.
The state has rested and the case will be argued to the jury today.

SHOEMAKER AN HEIR.

Bladenburg, O., Jan. 24.—J. A. Martin, a shoemaker, residing here, has received work from an attorney at Ft.
Scott, Kansas, stating that Mr. Martin is heir to about $50,000 under the will of the late Banker C. F. Drake, who died in that city not long ago. The deceased was an uncle of Mr. Martin.

POTTERS' UNION.

Coshocton, O., Jan. 25.—A local of the Brotherhood of Operative Potters was organized here Saturday night with George Young President. National
President T. J. Duffy, of East Liver-

Zanesville, O., Jan. 25.—In a divorce petition filed by Anna Williams against Charles Williams, Saturday, plaintiff alleges that husband shot at her,
threatened to cut her head off with a butcher knife and threw shoes at her.
The husband is now in Columbus.

DENISON'S PROSPECTS.

Granville, O., Jan. 25.—Denison's
Prospects for another successful season of baseball were never brighter. F.
G. Stanton, the old Bucknell catcher, has again been chosen coach of the team, notwithstanding the fact that there has been considerable opposition against him. While no one questions
his ability as a football coach, yet
some maintain that he lacks the needed qualities as a baseball coach. There may be a split on the team on account of him, but it is hoped that this may be smoothed over.

Of last season's crack nine there remain: Weber, catcher; Chambers,
pitcher; Barton, 1b; Roudeshush, ss;
and Green, 4b. A star is in school named Ferry, formerly of Georgetown, and Hoy Cross. He is sure of an infield position, probably second base.
He has quite a reputation as a batter.
Taylor of Peddie institute, has a lease on left field. James Aid and Fox will all make a strong bid for the 'varsity'.
There is such an array of hard hitting outfielders in school that it will be a hard matter to choose the 'varsity'
three.

Practice is now being commenced in the gymnasium. Captain Roudeshush predicts a successful season and will make an effort to again win the championship.

Notice to Taxpayers.

I have extended the tax collection to February 1, and for the benefit of bidding men and others who can not come during office hours, the Treasurer's office will be open Friday and Saturday evenings, January 29 and 30, from 6 to 8 o'clock.

W. N. FULTON,
Treasurer.

REMOVAL

I have moved my stock of boots and shoes to No. 15 South Fourth street, where I will be pleased to see all my old customers, also new ones. A new line of goods will be received in a few days. All kinds of repairing.
JOHN HISTER,
1-19-11 15 S. Fourth street.

PRETTY PLAN

To Earn $50,000 a Year During a Four-
Year Term in the Columbus Penitentiary.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 25.—The desire of George Rose, the defaulting cashier of the Produce Exchange bank, whose peculations caused the assignment of four banks, to go to the penitentiary
today will not be gratified. The bank
officials believe that Rose did not lose $187,000, which he confessed to have stolen, in speculation, but that he has the money hidden; that his scheme is to serve four years in the penitentiary
for the offense, then to return to this city a free but wealthy man. As a result of this belief the bank officials will not permit Rose's case to come to trial until he explains what disposition
he made of the $187,000.

Vice President C. O. Everts, of the bank, explained how Rose was able to steal such a large sum of money.

"I have been informed," said Mr.
Everts, "that it was his custom to manipulate the account held by the bank in New York. For instance, suppose he wanted $1,000. On the draft to be made out on New York $2,500 would be written. On the draft register at the bank the sum would be $1,500. He would then raise the totals of the loans made by the bank that day
$1,000. This would make the daily statement of the bank balance. This total of the discounts would be carried over to the next day, and the clerk making up the statement would, as is customary, use it without testing it. In this way the error was not discovered."

Rose is exceedingly dejected and gloomy, his face is gaunt and he is the picture of despair. And yet he managed to beguile the time away in a secluded corner of the lower corridor of the county jail, smoking cigars and perusing magazines.

Prosecutor Harvey Keeler wants Rose to get the limit, ten years. He gave the bank officials a line of rather strong talk on the subject of "compromising the law in favor of $170,000
embezzlers when common offenders
have to take the limit."

Keeler also suggested to them that,
although five years might be acceptable to them, "they were only a few of the people interested in the case and that the depositors whom Rose had robbed ought to have a word to say."
